Single Copy—SEVEN CENTS

THE LEGISLATURE

by Chick Evans

The fourth week of the 95th Maine Legislature started off with a bang.

Republican members of the House caucused on the evening of the opening day. Forty-four percent of the Republican House membership voted against the idea of a four-year term for governors; forty-seven percent against changing the date of the state election; and an unrecorded plurality against the proposal to elect members of the Executive Council by popular vote.

These constitutional changes had not only been recommended by the Republican State Committee members of the GOP Legislative Liaison Committee, but by the Citizens Committee on State Government. If finally approved by the Legislature, all proposals would automatically go to the people for final decision.

Promptly following the caucus, which also voted against annual legislative sessions—as did the State Committee—Republican legislative leaders made it clear that the time is too early to consider the caucus vote as anything but an opinion sampling. House majority floor leader James C. Tolman, Bangor, felt it was too early for firm opinion for or against the major constitutional changes. Rep. Rodney B. Ross, Jr., Bethel, assistant floor leader, expressed the same view and, on the closing legislative day, filed a resolve calling for a four-year term for governor. He noted that in the caucus the GOP representatives were asked what they thought about the constitutional changes, not how they felt about lending them to the people.

"Prudent Investment"
Legislation to require the Public Utilities Commission, in determining utility rate bases, to consider "prudent investment" as a valuation factor and exclude consideration of current value and reproduction cost was introduced this week by Rep. Orville B. Haughn (R-Bridgton). First Dr. Bill Almed at TV Sports. The first major dry bill in the offing this week and, when TV sports viewers hear about it they may rise up and produce something resembling the "shoot heard around the world." On the grounds that children might "get the habit" by watching sports with beer or wine sponsorship, a bill reportedly is being prepared by Sen. Clarence Parker (R-Sebec) and Rep. William H. Bruce (R-Buxton) to prohibit any beer or wine advertising in conjunction with a "sports event." Although it appeared at the close of the legislative week that the measure would be aimed at such popular television shows as the fights, ball games, and similar events, Maine radio broadcasters were concerned with the possibility that a restriction on radio as well as TV coverage might be written into the measure.

The prohibition proposal was being very quietly prepared this week. Among the few who were aware of it the question was raised as to whether a state has the power to legislate for a federally-licensed medium with interstate coverage, or what would be the position of a broadcasting station with studios in Maine its transmitter in an adjacent state.

Work Accidents—Cost of Living
Warning that the industrial accident rate in Maine is climbing, Commissioner of Labor and Industry Marion E. Martin told the Appropriations' Committee that the only way to reduce accident frequency is through more counseling service to manufacturers. If Maine doesn't provide that service, she predicted, the federal government will. The commissioner said she recommends counseling as more desirable than rigid rules. The Labor and Industry Dept. asked for funds to do a cost of living survey in Maine, which hasn't been done

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

During the year of 1956 we expended about $4000 for the use of power shovels and loaders. As these were in all cases hired the owner still owned the machines. In April of 1956 we made a lease agreement for the use of the Trojan loader that we have been using this year. We agreed to pay for the use of this machine $400.00 per month until the Annual Town meeting in 1957. At that time the Town has the option to purchase the loader or to let the Company take it back.

During the eight months after April and up to the close of our fiscal year we paid to Files & Griggs $3200.00 for the use of this loader. During that time we loaded over 22,000 yards of gravel and sand, not considering reloading winter sand or cold patch, unloading salt, moving snow as well as the many other odd jobs this machine has done.

We as you know charge up to each job the use of town owned equipment and credit the Truck Rental account for the work done. Using our transfer rate at a conservative figure this loader has earned $3,512.75. Our payment as mentioned above has been $3,200.00, repairs about $100.00 and our cost of Diesel fuel has been about 35c per hour for its operation. So the loader has earned its own way and paid its own bills. If you decide at Town meeting to purchase this piece of equipment the money already paid in as rent will be used to apply to net cash price of the loader. We have made arrangements to continue payments of $325 per month from the truck rental account to complete the purchase price without an appropriation if you decide to purchase it. Your inspection of this or any other equipment at any time is invited.

Thank you,
O. T. Rozelle

since 1948. The federal Consumer Price Index formerly included Portland, but has dropped that city from the list. Information on price changes is demanded by industry, labor and the public. Miss Martin told the committee.

Lawmakers' Travel Expense
Rep. Orville B. Haughn (R-Bridgton) is leaving no stone unturned in his quest for more travel money for members of the Legislature. This week he proposed to make a third move with an emergency bill raising the weekly mileage rate from five to eight cents. Haughn first had in the works a joint order providing such an increase, plus an order asking the state supreme court if the first order were legal. The court gave the opinion that travel pay is "personal" rather than legislative expense. A legislative order was improper, it said, because travel allowances in the past have been set by statute. However, the court's view also was that travel expense money is not compensation, as the Constitution constrains.

MRS. PETER SCHUTT

Our little friend and neighbor will be missed. In the few years she lived in our village she made many friends. Blessed are they who have the gift of making friends, for it is one of God's best gifts. With Melita this gift came easily for she was sincere and friendly.

Her manner was unassuming. Her joy was her husband and daughter. Her pastime was her garden, a thing of beauty. Her outstanding traits were sweetness, calmness and benevolence of mind.

She is not dead, she has but passed beyond the mists that blind us here into a new and larger life of a brighter sphere.

NEW INTERNAL REVENUE BOOKLET OUT

The Internal Revenue Service has issued a new, pocket-sized booklet, "Federal Use Tax on Highway Motor Vehicles," explaining the Highway Revenue Act which became effective July 1, 1956.

The booklet defines highway vehicles subject to the new tax, and contains a variety of information on the determination of taxable gross weight, exemptions, and preparation of applicable forms and returns, and the manner in which payments are made. A use-tax schedule of vehicles by category is also included.

Copies of the booklet are available free at the District Internal Revenue office at Augusta. Director Whitney L. Wheeler says they should be obtained at once by firms and individuals subject to the tax, since the initial tax payment deadline is January 31.

The new tax was levied by Congress to help defray the cost of the proposed expansion of the Nation's highways. It is effective until June 30, 1972.

Mrs. Herbert Kittredge is a patient at the CMG Hospital, Lewiston.

From The Houston Herald, Houston, Alabama: If some day the newspaper man or magazine editor should print the contents of his wastebasket, there would probably be a riot. There certainly would be trouble in many homes, streets in some direction, shotguns in others and troubles all around.

But the patron never sees the wastebasket. He only glances at the beautifully printed pages, complains if one letter is upside down, grows his disappointment if one name in five hundred has happened to go wrong, kicks because his communication signed "taxpayer," has been condensed into respectable English, frowns because the editor didn't take his advice regarding his neighbors' stray dogs and is generally disgruntled, not so much at what he finds as what he fails to find.

He knows his share of the wastebasket, but if he could look at the contributions made to that receptacle by his neighbors and friends, he would thank God for the existence of a man with sufficient intelligence and courage not to print all he knows and to temper even that he does print.

From The Suburban Life, Essex Junction, Vermont: Farmers complain about the higher cost of supplies and farm equipment that they have to buy now as compared with what they paid several years ago.

The railroads have higher cost of operation as well as increased prices for all equipment they buy. In 1947 a railroad box car cost about $3,800. The price today is just about double that or $7,600. Pretty much all the expert accountants are agreed that business, industry and farming are now working under a new economy of high prices. In all that I read it doesn't look to me that there will be any lower prices for many years to come, if ever.

From The Catalina Mountain Star, Sangerites, New York: In traveling around the country on a vacation tour, motorists pass through towns whose unfamiliar names often cause a smile. If not a real laugh. Some of the communities in our own area, whose names we take for granted, probably cause as much mirth to newcomers.

Few towns can top "Big Indian" for an odd name (nor give headline writers more fun) unless it is "Kiskatom," "Sundown," in the western tip of Ulster County, has received its share of comment, while "Rudy" was publicized a few years ago in a national magazine and "Accord" was the source of a gulp on a nationwide radio program.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The January 11th issue of U. S. News & World Reports carries feature articles with a telling and somewhat ominous title, "What Congress Will Do To You and For You."

An early sentence in the article states: "During the two years of its life, this Congress will take action affecting the life of nearly everyone in the nation — old and young, business-men and wage earners, farmers and school teachers." And that point is amplified with this observation: "For the most part, the new Congress will be to do things for people . . . Yet, in doing things for people at home and abroad, Congress will do things to people — particularly taxpayers."

In other words, this is expected to be a big-spend Congress — one which during its two years will be materially higher than seemed in prospect a comparatively short time ago, because of the recent and current world emergencies of a potential character. Military spending, obviously, will run at very high levels so will other spending designed to prevent the spread of Soviet power and influence. Total appropriations, so far as can be anticipated now, will be in the neighborhood of $72 billion a year for each of the two years of the 90th Congress' tenure.

This means that the outlook for tax cuts is not only dim, but black. There may be some changes and adjustments in the tax structure, but they will be of a comparatively minor character. No one now anticipates a general tax reduction.

U. S. News has summed up, in check list form, what we can and cannot expect from this Congress. In the way of major legislation, the prognosis will please only the thoroughly displease others. It leaves others still with mixed emotions. Here is how this authoritative magazine sees the present chances for certain laws:

Proposals which are unlikely to pass include tax relief for small business; general aid for school buildings; the bill to have delinquency stronger civil rights legislation; tighter curbs on imports; the Bricker amendment; changes in Taft-Hartley; increased minimum wage; approval of atomic power plants; and laws to loosen tight money.

Proposals which are likely to pass include closing of some tax loopholes; bigger defense spending; new aids for depressed areas; increased drought relief and other agricultural aids; increased foreign aid; the bill to allow more refugees to enter this country; the President's request for authority to use troops if necessary in the Middle East; the end of the drafting of draftees for military forces; indemnification for damage due to atomic accidents; higher postal rates on letters; more Federal money for mortgages; higher interest on GI mortgages; and a broader federal health program.

There are, needless to say, varying degrees of "likelihood" and "unlikelihood" in a summing up such as this. Future changes in events could easily move a "likely" proposal to the "unlikely" column, and vice versa. But this is what the crystal ball shows now. As U. S. News puts it, "The underlying trend in Congress at this session is to try to keep conditions quiet abroad and to improve the welfare of many groups at home."

RELUCTANT AWAKENING

TELL US YOUR PROBLEM

BY JOHN and JANE STRICKLAND

WHEN Edward Langly, Toronto, Canada, was sixteen, his father taught him a lesson in overcoming fear that he says has remained in his mind ever since. This being the age when the average boy becomes interested in girls, he says it must have been the cause of him taking a neighborhood girl to the movies.

He walked her home after the movie, and when he stepped off her front porch there stood the neighborhood bully who said, "Come down off that porch!" That frightened Edward. He was wearing a skull cap and as he stepped off the porch, he tossed it at the bully and when he reached for it, Edward hit him as hard as he could. Then he ran for home; ran into the house; ran up the stairs, and jumped into bed. From outside his window on the alley someone yelled, "I'll get you in the morning." He worried all night, even in his dreams, about what would happen to him on his way to school in the morning. The next morning as he started to dress, his father walked into his room, went to his closet with his school clothes in one hand and his dungarees in another. The dungarees he handed to Edward, the school clothes he rehung in the closet. Then his father went back downstairs, not having spoken a word. Edward dressed and started to school — tension and fear mounting with every step he took.

As he turned the corner at the filling station he saw coming that big bully with a group of his friends. They went into a vacant lot, and here Edward began a fight in deadly earnest, determined to fight until he had won. After it was over, he went home. When he turned up the walk, his father stepped out on the porch with a look on his face that Edward had never before seen. Putting his arm around his son's shoulder he looked at him with pride.

"Without a word," says Edward, "my father taught me the fundamental rules for overcoming fear and worry."

GOULD ACADEMY

One Act Plays Cast

Student production of three one-act plays will be presented again this year as part of the Winter Carnival, March 1. These productions mark the 43rd, 44th, and 45th in a series inaugurated by David Thompson since coming to Gould.

Twenty students will act in the three light comedies. The casts include:

"Ah, Sweet Mystery" — with Maryl Elenmeyer, Sandra Glennie, Hilda Hubbard, Betty Murrell, William Tallon, and Jane and Stephen Yeaton.

"What's Wrong With The Girls" — with Jewel Bean, Donald Christie, Lorraine Cole, Mark Freeman, Herbert Morton, Dennis Robertson, and Elizabeth Stevens.

"Romance Inc." — with Diane Arnhem, Mary Head, Mary Laxton, Marjorie Morton and Sue Merrill.

The Gould Academy ski team will travel to North Conway, N. H., this week end to compete with Kennett High School of Conway.

Last week end the Gould skiers finished a weak third in a 5 team meet at the Edward Little High School Winter Carnival at Auburn.

In a previous meet this year Edward Little outpointed Kennett. From the scores of the two meets Kennett will rate a slight favorite in this week end's encounter. It will be a four event meet starting Friday afternoon and finishing Saturday.

Jack Field of Lisbon Falls, a member of the senior class of Gould Academy, is the 1957 winner of the Bausch & Lomb Honorary Science Award Medal for achieving the highest scholastic record in science subjects during his high school career. It has been announced by Elwood B. Ireland, Headmaster.

Only winners of this Award, presented annually in more than 8000 secondary schools throughout the country, are eligible to compete for the Science Scholarships sponsored by the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company at the University of Rochester.

The internationally-famous Rochester, N. Y., optical firm provides for three or four scholarships annually, with flexible stipends based on financial need, and with a total combined value of $9,000.

Although the Science Award Medal is presented upon graduation, the winner must be selected at an early date because applications for the scholarship must be filed with the University on or before March 1. The selection of the winner is based upon scholastic achievement in science, with incidental consideration of general academic standing, qualities of leadership, and extra-curricular activities.

Both the Bausch & Lomb Science Award and Science Scholarship Programs have been officially approved by the National Association of Secondary-School Principals, and educators throughout the country. These awards are recognized as significant evidence of scientific aptitude, and have encouraged countless young people to the consideration of careers in science.

Huskies Meet Mechanic Falls At Norway Friday

Gould Academy will be playing a return game with Mechanic Falls at the Norway Armory, Friday. The Mechanic Falls team has yet to taste defeat this year and are favored to easily take Gould for a second time. This will be the second game of a double header in which Mexico and Norway will open in a 7:30 game.

Mexico Here Tuesday

Gould Academy will play their last home game of the basketball season this Tuesday evening with Mexico High School. The JV's will play a preliminary game starting at 6:30 p. m. The Pintos have improved since their pre-holiday games and rule a favorite to down the Huskies.

Gould 54-Norway 48

Gould Academy came thru with a 54 to 48 victory over Norway High here last Friday. It was the 11th straight win of the season for the boys 1, Alberts Rugg 1, Ruth Stev-

Huskies while the Rams still have no wins against 7 losses in the league. The home team stepped into an early lead and were never headed.

Whitten was the big point maker for the locals with 23 points. Lin Allen collected 16 to lead the visitors.

The Gould JV's opened the evening's affair with another of their thrillers. Throughout most of the game they led with a comfortable margin; but the visitors put on a fourth period rally that nearly overtook the eventual winners. The final score was Gould 39, Norway 27.

ALBANY - WATERFORD

Lillian L. Brown, Cor.—
The sudden death of Harry Brown at his home in North Waterford came as a great shock, not only to his family but also to the people of this village, where he has always lived except for a few years spent at South Paris. He was loyal to all principles which he thought right and was ever ready to give aid and counsel. He will be deeply missed in the community.

Friends here are glad to hear that George Logan who went to Colorado a short time ago is more comfortable.

GREENWOOD CITY SCHOOL
We have a lot of things to report this week. Collis, Carl, Lucy and John Curtis didn't miss any school days for the half year. — It was so cold one morning Albert Curtis froze his nose playing in the morning at school. — Monday, the day of the inauguration, Evelyn Curtis invited us up to her home for dinner and to watch the president and vice-president take their oath of office for the second term. — Our school kept through all the coldest days though one day we kept our coats on until the morning recess. — Our school received a new record with the top eight hits on it. — The seventh grade is studying how to read meters in arithmetic. The seventh and eighth grades are studying planets in geography and have diagrammed the placing of them. — Those having one hundred in spelling for last week were Nancy Ridley, Collis Curtis and Robert Holt. — Grade three has started the study of geography for the first time. They have learned the continents and are now studying North America. On a large map they have placed the animals they have studied. — Mr. Christie called one day last week. — Faylene Walsanen visited us one day. — Your reporter, Nancy Ridley.

So Haugh killed the joint order and said he would file an emergency bill to make the increase effective as soon as signed by the governor. Regular Election of Councilors
Because he believes strongly that the people should have an opportunity to decide whether or not they want to elect members of the governor's council, Sen. Low, Republican, said on the closing day that he had filed a bill with that objective. The constitutional amendment would go to the people if given a two-thirds vote by the Legislature. One aspect of the Low bill provides that each councilor would be elected

Sales Tax Exemptions
Exemptions from the state sales tax were certain to be embodied in several bills this session. Three of them appeared this legislative week. In one, Sen. John H. Reed (R-Fairfield) proposes exemption of farm supplies such as sprays, dusts, and animal medicines. Seeds, feed and fertilizer are already exempt.

In another measure readied by Rep. Louis O. Couture (R-Bath) sales of water used in the home or on surrounding land would be tax free. Water supplied for commercial or farm use would not be exempt under the Couture proposal.

Sen. Leo St. Pierre (D-Lewiston) announced late in the week that he would file a bill exempting all clothing sales. Expressing the view that clothing is one of the necessities of life the senator said he first thought of exempting only clothing for children up to 16, but later decided to make the application to all clothing. It is estimated that the St. Pierre exemption would reduce sales tax income by half a million a year.

Ask Turnpike to Pay For State Police

State police protection on the 106-mile Maine Turnpike costs the state somewhere between $135,000 and $150,000 a year. Rep. Benjamin S. Crockett (R-Freeport) proposes that the Turnpike Authority pay for that service in a bill he introduced this week.

Such a change was recommended by the Public Administration Service, which saw no reason why motorists who don't use the Turnpike should contribute through the state gasoline tax and registration fees for services provided for those who do so.

Rep. Crockett said reimbursement to the state would conform to toll road practices in other states. William B. Getchell, MTA executive director, on the other hand, says the Turnpike earnings in 1956 aren't expected to equal interest charges. He argues that the state has received over $3-million from taxes on gasoline used by vehicles on the pike, and that tolls are already high enough.

Rep. Crockett points out that money received from the Turnpike Authority for police services would reduce the budget deficiency of the highway fund. Ninety percent of State Police costs are paid out of that fund.

"Tough" Driving Penalties Proposed

Mandatory minimum fines for motor vehicle law violations, plus stiff optional penalties, are set forth in a "tough" bill introduced in the House by Rep. Frank E. Hancock (R-York). Minimum fines range from $10 to $100. The existing law only sets maximum penalties.

Hancock's bill provides a minimum fine of $10 for any violation which has no specific penalty, and it could not be suspended. For other violations, these punishments are proposed:
Reckless driving: Mandatory, $40; optional, up to $200 or imprisonment up to three months for a first offense.

Leaving the scene of a personal injury accident: Mandatory, $100; optional, up to $500 or up to nine months in jail. Second offense $200 to $500 penalty or prison up to 11 months, or both.

Leaving the scene of a property damage accident: $25 to $100 or imprisonment for 60 days, or both. For driving after suspension or revocation of license the fine in the Hancock bill would be $100 or $500 or jail up to six months, or both.

Fix That Eysere... Or Else
A unanimous "Ought to Pass" report was stamped on the first bill to come out of the Legal Affairs Committee in the 1957 session. Presented by Rep. Frank M. Pierce (D-Freeport), this measure would allow a municipality to obtain a court order forcing the owner of a fire-damaged building to pay for repair or demolition. At present a town has to pay for the job, then endeavor to collect from the owner.

Bear, Porcupine Bounties
Agriculture Commissioner E. L. Newdick has asked the Appropriations Committee for $120,000 for bear and porcupine bounties. The amount was in contrast to the $120,000 recommended in the governor's budget. Newdick pointed out that $100,000 came from dog license fees and that the 1955 law creating the 25 cent porcupine bounty specified that bounty money must come from those fees. He warned, however, that he had had to ask the Governor and Council for $20,000 to pay bounties "despite the fact that our other livestock

SETTING THE TRAP

Whole nations from time to time come under the freedom-destroying rule of dictators by devious methods which fool the people until they are trapped.

Powerful labor leaders and politicians in the United States have been promoting candidates and measures to build government monopolies to the exclusion of free enterprise. If such a program is successful, rank and file workmen would find themselves mere work slaves as they did in Germany and Russia. Their labor bosses would be holding top political jobs. Strikes would be outlawed under penalties such as we have witnessed in the dictator countries. Government control of industry and individuals would be extended.

You may think this could not happen here but it is happening under many disguises. Commenting on the way workers are forced to contribute for candidates and measures which they may oppose, Raymond Moley in Newweek lists large sums that are taken from union funds for political purposes. He points out that workmen should be interested "... in the fact that their contributions, which should be devoted to matters related to their interests as workers, are thus diverted to the ideological and political concerns of their officers."

Thus are individuals trapped into situations over which they have no control.

and damage claims were at the lowest point in 10 years or more. State Business Has Grown
The Legislature got some idea of how the state's fiscal business has grown when State Treasurer Frank S. Carpenter told the Appropriations Committee that since 1951 cash transactions, receipts and payments, have gone from $100-million to $150-million a year. Bonded debt, he disclosed, rose from about $24-million in 1952 to almost $41-million in 1953, and was under $35-million last June 30. Carpenter handled trust funds totaling $35-million.

Teams of Experts Making New Gains in Care of Polio Victims

There is more to the care of the physically disabled than strengthening a weakened arm or leg or applying a brace. Experts in the treatment of patients who have suffered polio—the great cripple—long ago discovered that the job of human repair is about as complex as the disease itself.

Often it requires, in addition to the physician, the skills of the physical therapist, the specially trained nurse, the psychiatrist, and other specialists.

More recently, researchers supported by the March of Dimes have found that these experts can do more by working together as a team than the sum of their efforts by working separately.

A 34-year-old California airline pilot, for instance, is cited by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis as one case of a polio victim whose "almost hopeless" plight was salvaged by such a team. The pilot lost the use of both his arms and his legs. In addition, he suffered a respiratory paralysis that reduced his vital breathing capacity to eight per cent of normal. Aggravating his condition, he contracted pneumonia, an inflammation of the air passages behind nose and throat, and a severe skin ailment.

Survey Team Formed

A medical and rehabilitation team was formed at the Rancho Los Amigos Respiratory Center, supported by March of Dimes funds in Hondo, Calif., to survey his condition and map out a plan of salvage. The physician in charge admitted, to begin with, that the patient presented "a discouraging picture as far as rehabilitation is concerned."

Despite this, the team of experts was so successful in treating the pilot that he was eventually able to return to his home and even to resume work again in a responsible ground position for his airline.

This new idea of "team approach" is described by Dr. Kenneth S. Landauer, director of Respiratory and Rehabilitation Center Services of the National Foundation. He calls it a treatment that involves "giving adequate care to the whole human being" of the polio victim. "Adequate care is a phrase whose meaning changes from day to day," says Dr. Landauer. "What is adequate care today is antiquated tomorrow. New techniques for the restitution of polio ravage are discovered and applied with startling speed."

To 'Finish the Job'

Care for "the whole human being," declares Dr. Landauer, means that every aspect of the handicapped polio patient's life must be investigated and readjusted. Included are his mental, emotional, social, economic and vocational capacities.

The "expert team" plan will be pushed in 1957 by the National Foundation's 15 respiratory and rehabilitation centers scattered throughout the country as part of its Patient Aid program. This program, together with its drive to wipe out polio by widespread inoculation with Salk vaccine, constitutes a main feature of the Foundation's 1957 "Let's Finish the Job" campaign.

Need Care For Years

Some 80,000 persons in the United States still suffer physical disability as the aftermath of polio attacks. Though the Salk vaccine, developed under the sponsorship of National Foundation funds, promises an eventual end to paralytic polio, less than half the susceptible population—under 40 years of age—has as yet been inoculated. More victims of polio will inevitably be added to the 80,000 before vaccination is universal.

In 1957 the March of Dimes will help meet these challenges with a $4,000,000 expansion program at its respiratory and rehabilitation centers and by means of a $5,000,000 special fund to start bringing the benefits of new team techniques to polio casualties.

One obstacle to the use of teams of experts, Dr. Landauer explains, is the shortage of trained personnel. "The March of Dimes has been making grants to 13 medical schools and institutions to recruit experts for this highly specialized profession," he says. "March of Dimes funds have already been awarded to 4,200 men and women as a part of the National Foundation's educational program. Last year $2,800,000 was allotted to this program. The total sum contributed by the March of Dimes for rehabilitation training since 1938 is $24,900,000."

How Teams Work

This is the way the team experts work when a polio patient enters a March of Dimes rehabilitation center:

First, the medical director starts a comprehensive and individualized evaluation of the patient's condition. Called into action for this purpose are several different kinds of medical and mental specialists, as well as physical therapists, occupational therapists, social workers and vocational counselors.

Then, an overall plan of treatment and re-education is formulated jointly by the whole team. The medical director remains in charge, but each team member is responsible for integrating his particular rehabilitation job into the overall scheme.

The National Foundation believes that this new team concept will prove to be as big a step forward in medical progress as the organization's sponsorship of the polio vaccine. The team plan, it points out, can be applied to other chronically incapacitated Americans, estimated at 28,000,000. Of these millions only a minute fraction has been benefited by the team approach. Thus the scientific advances made possible by the March of Dimes rehabilitation and education program hold out great promise of happier and more hopeful lives.
